BARRY LOWELL ROSSER

No Photo Available

Circumstances: Barry Lowell Rosser, a 23-year-old Caucasian male, was last seen in the Big Sur region of California on September 30, 1965. He disappeared after a group with which he was searching for a gold mine left him alone at a campsite. When the group returned, Rosser had disappeared. He has never been seen or heard from again. The camp's supplies were untouched and left intact. The site was within view of a road. He is a flautist and graduated with a degree in Music from the University of California.
